Davismen Keep in League Race by Touncing Jack Hart's Veterans 9-6

LYONS GOES THE ROUTE

By JOHN MULLIGAN
This year's Main Line League second-half race without a doubt bids for the distinction of being the most hectic in a long span, and as the clubs shoot up the home stretch one guess as to the ultimate winner is as good as another. But one thing is certain. Whoever nine is fortunate enough to skid through to pennant land that aggregation will know it has been in a real fight, one where the copper of the initial chase didn't "lay down" to any one. Gene Davis' Narberth tossers impressed us with this fact last Saturday by taking another, this time at the expense of the mediocre Jack Hart's Veterans. The score was 9-6.

To date the Davismen have tried to defeat every club, believing that a team, to be rated as half-champ, should win against the strongest opposition possible. In other words, as Gene Davis told this writer: "Maybe the fans figure we don't care to win this half, but I think the club which grabs it should be made to work for it. We'll try to win as many as possible, even if it ultimately means no playoff series."

Nick Lyons, former Lower Merion High School and Bryn Mawr Choctaws right hander, hurled the full distance for the homesters. With the exception of the first and last innings he pitched fairly good ball, but his usual weakness bothered him. Seven waited him out for free tickets, but he struck out as many and was touched for only six hits, while his teammates rattled 17 off their bats.

McGee got hold of one in the first inning after Nick had passed Sirch and Carter and planted it for a circuit smash, tying up the count, since the Borough team had tabbed a trio in its opening round.

The town boys scored theirs when Howdy Powell drew a walk, Harry Francis singled, Walt MacGregor poked a double, scoring two, and Bob Gillfillan smacked a bingle, admitting Mac.

Al Kreuz, bald-headed former University of Pennsylvania football and diamond star, started on the hill to left-hand 'em up for the visitors, but gave way to Bob Kelly, a right hander, after the sixth frame. Narberth added single markers in the fifth, seventh and eighth, then scored three more in their final time with the lumber, as the majority of fans no doubt figured it was just a "good measure" process.

However, it was mighty fortunate for the Davismen that they had scored those runs, for the Vets came back with a rush in their final chance and threatened seriously to wipe out the lead. McConville opened with a one-bagger and Friel was safe when MacGregor tried to hurry a double-play tap to short. Franklin whiffed the ozone, but Sirch doubled, driving home McConville, and Carter smashed a

Health Centers Closed

The five Child Health Centers conducted by the Community Health and Civic Association are being closed for several weeks.

Miss Mildred E. Martin, Director of the Health Service, states that this action is being taken upon the recommendation of the attending physicians at the Health Centers, who feel that due to the occurrence of a number of cases of infantile paralysis in the community the closing of the centers is advisable as a measure of prevention and control.

These Centers are maintained in the interest of protecting and promoting the health of infant and pre-school children and are located at: 25 E. Athens avenue, Ardmore; Lancaster and Bryn Mawr avenues, Bryn Mawr; Elm Hall, Forest avenue, Narberth; Public School, E. Eagle road, Oakmont; Ashland Public School, W. Manayunk.

Rhythm Band Performs at Playground

Under the able leadership of John Dorenzo (with raised baton) the Rhythm Band enchanted its audience at the Narberth Playground last week. An innovation this season, the Band is composed of 24 pieces.

Play Day and Presentation of Prizes Winds Up Narberth Playground Season

The Narberth Playground season wound up last Friday with the annual "Play Day" marked by games and events for all the boys and girls, followed by a treasure hunt and culminating with the presentation of prizes and medals won during the summer. The total attendance at the playground during mornings and afternoons, exclusive of the evening attendance, totaled 11,622, which surpassed last summer's figure by over 1500. The morning attendance averaged 162 and the afternoon 162.

Four groups participated in the sports events of Play Day. They were the senior boys (14 to 19), junior boys (13 and under), senior girls (14 and over), and junior girls (13 and under).

Each group had several events in which to compete; first place counting 6 points, second 4 and third 2.

The winners were as follows: senior girls—Jo Baker with 18 points (1st in hop, step and jump and third in 75 yard dash, basketball throw and broad jump); Peggy Walzer with 16 points (1st in basketball throw and broad jump and second in 75 yard dash); Rita Salvatorelli with 10 points (1st in 75 yard dash, and 2d in the broad jump).

Junior girls—Alice Hussey, 1st with 16 points (1st in 50 yard dash and three legged race and 2d in the shoe novelty race); Anna Salvatorelli (1st in three legged race, 2d in 50 yard dash, and 3d in the sack race), and Katherine McKeown (1st in marble and spoon race, 2d in sack race and 3d in three legged race) were tied for second place with 12 points each.

In the senior boys' events, of which there were eight, McGary won first place, A. Finan second, and Hartley third. James Parks placed first in the Junior Boys' events, Henry Smith second and William Leahy third.

Following the completion of these events the treasure hunt was run off. The youngsters raced all over the Playground, with Jack Chain emerging as the winner. He followed directions on the last slip closely and dug up the dollar bill in the middle of the field.

Prizes were awarded Play Day winners and to winners of various tournaments throughout the season and to the championship baseball teams by J. R. Hall, member of the Borough Council and secretary and treasurer of the Recreation Board.

Those receiving awards were: the Narberth Juniors, winners of both halves of the senior baseball league, the old "Y" cup. Members of the team are J. P. Gallagher, captain; J. J. Gallagher, P. Kane, D. Stroup, J. Casey, Gilroy, Keim, Wright, J. Finan, A. Griffis, G. Davis, and Rittenhouse.

The Wildcats were also awarded a cup as champions of the Junior Baseball league. Team members: J. O'Connor, Wm. Finan, Coradetti, Heald, Chain, Curran, White, Doyle, Leahy, E. Burgess, manager.

The individual players of each winning team were also awarded medals.

Florence Wilson Wins Women's Tennis Title

Defeats Grace Werner in Hard Fought Three Set Match at Playground

PUPPET SHOW STAGED

Florence Wilson won the singles title of the women's tennis tourney at the Playground by defeating Grace Werner in a closely contested match by the score of 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The players were very evenly matched, and the spectators were kept guessing as to who would be the victor. Miss Werner played a cool and steady game, winning the first set and was well on the way to winning the second, when Miss Wilson rallied brilliantly bringing the score to 5 all, and eventually winning the set at 7-5. In the final and deciding set, by her dashing play, Miss Wilson won by the score of 6-3.

Following were the entries: Mary Slete, Edith Maltby, Irma Minnich, Grace Werner, Myra Gregory, Jo Baker, Virginia Steinfeld, Marie Miesen, Lois Maltby, Anna Sell, Dorothy Merkel, Elizabeth Miesen, Lois Caldwell, Florence Wilson and Emily Brown.

Eight teams competed in the mixed Volley Ball Tournament, with the Finan and Ordiorne teams battling their way to the final round, which resulted in Finan's team defeating Ordiorne 21 to 19.

Participants were: Dot Berry, Freda Roessler, P. Wilmington, J. Veator, L. Terry, S. Dukat, Ethel Voight, M. Casavecchia, T. Ordiorne, T. Finn, Peggy Walzer, Nancy Donahue, E. Lester, A. Blase, Emily Hoffman, J. Murphy, K. Parks, F. Robb, C. Spinelli, Alice Callahan, A. Bottoms, Thompson, Ingeborg Thaysen, Norma Hoffman, J. Finan, Lois Maltby, Louise Megee, G. Marsteller, J. Gallagher, H. Heusler and Myrtle Gregory.

The Puppet Show in which the children participated was the crowning event of the season. This was the first Puppet Show ever given at the Playground entirely prepared by the children. The setting under the grove of trees put one in mind of "Robin Hood Dell" with the Rhythm Band adding realism to the scene. The efforts of the children were well rewarded by the applause of the audience.

Tennis Courts Stay Open

The Narberth Playground season ended officially last week, but the tennis courts will remain open to Narberth residents as long as weather permits. Football goal posts will be erected for the use of local teams and the grounds will be kept in playing condition.

Berwyn Victim of Boro Nine Monday

Babb Strikes Out Eight and Drives in Winning Run With Single

DROP MID-WEEK FRAY

By JOHN MULLIGAN
Narberth earned a fifty-fifty rating in its two mid-week games, winning the first, a Main Line League affair, from Berwyn Monday by a 2-1 score, and dropping the other to Wayne Hawks on Wednesday by the same figures.

The veteran George Babb worked on the mound for the Davismen in the loop fray and drove over the winning run in the sixth with a single, after handing the visitors their one marker in the first frame on a wild pitch.

Outside of that one wild spell he looked mighty good and walked nary a man, somewhat of an accomplishment for him, since he is known as being wild and woolly on the slab. Eight batters returned to the bench with their averages deflated via strikeouts and he was nicked for only five hits, the same number as the first-half champs tabbed off Pitcher Jack Davis.

Incidentally, the Berwyn pitcher was a rare specimen. He looked about as much like a pitcher as we resemble a movie hero. Standing out on the mound, with no pitching form whatever, he used no wind-up, just threw

Narberth Man Scales Unclimbed Mt. Peak

Dr. Max M. Strumia Makes Ascent of 10,000-Foot Mt. Oubliette

REQUIRED 22 HOURS

Dr. Max M. Strumia, of Narbrook Park, Narberth, director of the Laboratory at Bryn Mawr Hospital, returned recently from a mountain climbing expedition to the Canadian Rockies, which resulted in the ascent of Mt. Oubliette, a 10,000-foot peak, which was one of the few remaining unclimbed peaks in the Rockies.

The successful ascent was made on the second attempt, after the first try was thwarted when Dr. Strumia and his companion were only 200 feet short of their goal. A terrific electrical storm and a sheer ledge of rock put an end to their first attempt after being out 15 hours.

After a day of rest they began the second attempt on July 27, which took them to the top of the snow and rock-clad crag. The ascent required 22 hours.

"It is one of the most difficult peaks in the Canadian Rockies," Dr. Strumia said, "and the hardest climb I have made in 30 ascents there. We were helped immeasurably by using modern equipment, as it would not have been possible otherwise."

In descending the peak, Dr. Strumia and his companion used what is termed "roping off," which is sliding down via ropes. One slide covered a

Narberth School Opening May Be Posponed Due to Paralysis

Health Board Holds Special Meeting to Consider Matter—Lower Merion Schools to Close—Two New Cases of Disease Reported

The opening of the Narberth Public Schools, scheduled for Wednesday, September 7, may be postponed due to the prevalence of infantile paralysis on the Main Line.

The Lower Merion public, private and parochial schools were ordered to postpone their opening, also scheduled for next Wednesday in the case of the public schools, by the Lower Merion Board of Health at a special meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

The Narberth Board of Health held a special meeting last night to consider the matter of deferring the opening of the Borough public schools. The meeting was held after OUR TOWN went to press.

Inasmuch as Narberth students attending Lower Merion High School are effected by action of the Township Health Board and since corresponding conditions exist in the Borough, it is felt that steps similar to those taken in Lower Merion will be resorted to by the Narberth Board.

Bulletins relative to the action of the Narberth Board of Health will be placed by Our Town at the Post Office and Davis store. Information on the Board's action will also be available by phone at the office of Our Town (Narberth 2545) or The Main Liner (Ardmore 3100).

Two new cases of paralysis were reported in the Borough last weekend. They are Alice Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cook, 110 Woodside avenue, who is in Bryn Mawr Hospital, and James Carmody, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Carmody, of 118 Essex avenue, who is being treated at home. Both cases are said to be responding well to treatment.

In addition to postponing the opening of schools until further notice, the Lower Merion Board of Health further ordered that all children be excluded from attendance at all Churches, Sunday Schools, moving picture theatres, swimming pools and playgrounds.

Although no new cases of the disease have been reported in the Township since August 23, the resolution was adopted by the Board as a precautionary measure and for the best interests of the health of the people.

Miss Elizabeth Cook Engaged to Mr. James H. Stevenson

Mrs. Oakie S. Cook, of 115 Dudley avenue, Narberth, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth R. Cook and Mr. James Hazlet Stevenson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Stevenson, of Wynnewood.

Mrs. Cook announced her daughter's engagement at an informal dancing party at Peacock gardens, given in honor of Miss Cook by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Cooke, of Lantwyn Lane on Tuesday evening.

Nash Improving

John C. Nash, of 80 Wynnedale road, who was operated on for appendicitis August 22 at Bryn Mawr Hospital, was reported this week to be coming along nicely, although it may be three weeks before he leaves the hospital. His condition following the operation was considered serious, due to complications which ensued.

Cook Wins Tennis Crown

Allan Cook, former Lower Merion and Lafayette College athlete, won the singles tennis championship of Easton, Pa., recently. After eliminating the number one seeded player, Justin Foster, Cook, who was seeded third, defeated Frank Murch, of Lafayette, in the finals by the score of 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Cook, of Rockland road, Merion.

Would-Be Voters May Enroll on Tuesday and Wednesday

The Registry Assessors of the Borough will sit at the polling places on Tuesday and Wednesday between the hours of 11 A. M. and 4 P. M. and 7 to 10 P. M., daylight saving time, to enroll non-registered residents who wish to vote at the November election.

Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller, the Assessor for the First District, will sit at Elm Hall; Mrs. Horace Murray, Second District, at the Legion room of the Community Building, and Mrs. Mary M. Livingston at the Boy Scout House in the Third District.

Jimmy Dykes Speaks Before Rotary Club

Athletics' Star Tells Neighbors Incidents of Season's Campaign

PRaises FOXX, SIMMONS

Brief pictures of the world of baseball were given members of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club Tuesday by Jimmy Dykes, stellar third baseman of the Athletics and the Main Line's representative in organized baseball.

Alexander J. Esrey, of Brookline, acted as chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker in a manner which showed that one baseball enthusiast was paving the way for another. Dykes was described as the American League leader at third base and in fielding. He was pointed out as the cornerstone of the fighting spirit of the Mackmen and as the friend of the younger players.

The high grade of baseball being produced by the Yankees this season was given by Dykes as the reason the A's will probably end in second place. The failure of the Philadelphia pitchers to win games early in the season established a handicap which the excellent playing later in the season could not overcome. "The team is stronger this year than last," he said, "but it looks as though the Yanks are stronger."

High praise was given to Foxx and

Alice Tyson to Enter Bucknell This Month

Announcement has been made by H. W. Holter, Registrar, that Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, has accepted the application for entrance of Miss Alice Louise Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Tyson, of 519 S. Narberth avenue, Merion.

Miss Tyson was graduated from Lower Merion High School with the Class of '32. She will enter the Liberal Arts course at Bucknell.

Freshmen week will open on September 7, as originally scheduled. Temporary classrooms and dormitory rooms for men have been provided to take the place of those destroyed by the "Old Main" fire.

This Year's Chance

For years music lovers of the Philadelphia district have been divided into classes: those who have tickets for the Philadelphia Orchestra, and those who wish they had. With the demand for seats far exceeding the supply, the Orchestra has been somewhat like an exclusive club, and for a time it looked as though the waiting list would soon eclipse that of the Union League.

But depressions have a habit of opening up rooms on the well-known ground floor, both literally and figuratively. It is possible this year to become the owner of a seat at the concerts. One need not wait for years, for many holders of the coveted season tickets have been obliged to drop them, giving a new generation a chance to step in.

Business conditions have not as yet destroyed the waiting list for the Friday afternoon series, but fine seats, and even boxes, may be had for Saturday night or Monday night. The misfortune of the music lover who has been unable to renew his ticket becomes an opportunity for those who have waited for a long while.

The purchase of these seats this year will benefit both the buyer and the Orchestra Association. To the former it will be the beginning of a long period of artistic opportunity; the latter it will mean a partial solution of the Association's financial problem.

Any individual or family on the Main Line with a few dollars available for such a valuable cultural experience would be foolish indeed if this Fall's opportunity were allowed to pass. Those who procure seats this year will be among the envied ones in the future.

Banking as a Profession

With the reconstruction of our banking facilities a pressing problem of the very near future, a recent letter of Major A. Stanley Stanford, of Whitehall, Haverford, is an interesting and constructive challenge. Why, he asks, should not banking be raised to the dignity of a profession.

Pointing out the exhaustive training and careful examinations governing the medical profession; the training and examining of lawyers; the preparation of engineers, architects, clergymen and accountants, Major Stanford shows that even realtors, insurance brokers, plumbers, barbers and operators of beauty shops are subject to training, licensing and a code of ethics—and yet, he points out—

"Any combination of men may get together, regardless of their fitness or unfitness, organize with Federal or State authority, and operate a BANK; handle thousands and perhaps millions of dollars of the people's money, and perhaps through their very ignorance of the banking business and ethics permit the institutions committed to their care to smash with terrible losses to depositors and stockholders? And that very often the innocents never suspect that their Bank is insolvent until too late to protect themselves or others?"

And after a bank is in operation, the writer continues, what is the significance of the audits and reports to State and Federal banking authorities. What use are these reports if they do not show the true condition of affairs, and fail to reveal a condition of decay months before the actual crash.

Constructive suggestions for the banking industry are contained in the letter. Major Stanford asks:

"THEN, WHY NOT really raise banking to the dignity of a Profession by requiring all who engage in that line of business to be fully qualified, and to be licensed only after proper examination as to their qualifications, bond every officer and director and keep out the unfit? Would not a preliminary examination of candidates for the control of OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY, to prove their fitness and understanding of ethics and common honesty, be likely to prove of greater value than a belated examination of books and accounts which may or may not be correct?"

"Why not have just one system of Banking under Federal or State authority? But, if it is necessary or desirable to have both Federal and State organized Banks, then why not have some provision for the protection of depositors by making the Government that created them and supervises them responsible to depositors for the safety of their money?"

"Why should not the responsible Government hold Stockholders and Directors responsible for all losses, and the Stockholders have a like come-back against their Directors, whose representatives and agents they are?"

"Why not provide a stiff prison sentence for any Bank Director who contributes to the wrecking of his bank through his wilful neglect and ignorance of what is being done by those he is required to DIRECT?"

"Why not kick politics and petty politicians out of the Banking field and give the people a chance for a change?"

"There are thousands of splendidly managed banks and many thousands of men engaged in the banking business who are of sterling integrity and one hundred per cent. qualified to fill their positions. Such Banks and such men always enjoy the respect and confidence of the public. There can be no safer or saner place for any man to keep his money than in a bank, where he knows the officers and directors and respects them. There is nothing wrong with the vast majority of our bankers, but there is something wrong with a system that won't work unless someone wants it to work; that will pretend to supervise and keep fully informed, and know nothing, and that will commit the treasure of widows and orphans to the hands of men who are utterly unfit in every way, and who cannot be regulated or kept straight. The result of such laxity has too often caused people to lose faith in all men and to regard with suspicion many who are honorable to the last degree. We need a change."

Had Excess on Deposit
To the Editor of "Our Town":

In a recent issue of your paper there appeared on the front page a statement that a suit had been entered by the Banking Commissioner for the Merion Title and Trust Company to cover $4500 due on a certain promissory note executed by Gwynn T. Shepperd.

In this connection I beg to state that the Merion Title and Trust Company does hold a promissory note of mine for $4500, which was not due for thirty or more days after the failure of the bank. I had deposited in the Merion Title and Trust Company an amount far in excess of $4500 to meet this indebtedness when said note should be due. The bank failed and closed its door. I cannot see that I am obligated to pay the $4500 when they are indebted to me for an amount far in excess of the said note.

I would be pleased if you would publish this statement.

Very truly yours,
GWYNN T. SHEPPERD.

Exhibits Russian Posters

A private showing of posters brought from Russia was given by Miss Ellen Brinton, of 127 Merion avenue, Narberth, at her home on Wednesday night. Miss Brinton, field secretary of the Women's International League, believes the posters to be one of the most striking examples of modern Russian art.

Shreds & Patches

More than 3000 workers who, in New York City and vicinity make most of the dolls and stuffed toys produced in the United States, have gone on strike against sweat-shop conditions. This incident will probably afford ample opportunity to the country's noble army of columnists for many quips and clever verbal turns, and The Vagrant was tempted that way himself, but he was arrested by the thought that a sweated occupation must be equally intolerable, whether it produces over-stuffed dolls or more serious articles for adult consumption.

Among the interesting signs of the times is the openly arrogant and hostile attitude which Tammany is adopting toward Governor Roosevelt while the Mayor Walker decision impends. Always after the overthrow of some entrenched political power, whether Charles I, Louis XVI, Czar Nicholas II or an American city machine, it is possible to see in retrospect that the last straw was an act of stupid arrogance immediately preceding the debacle. No one is so blind as the autocrat just before his own end. The recent veto by the Philadelphia machine of the needed reform of Philadelphia county's financial responsibilities may have been another symptom of the same state of mind and also of an impending upheaval from below.

It is not the big things, such as disagreements over money matters, that upset marital relations, in the opinion of The Vagrant's friend Smith. He says that his wife's chronic failure to squeeze the tooth paste tube at the right place and his own inclination not to put the cap back on the same tube have driven them nearer to Reno than any other single influence in their long married life.

"If I happened to be in some festive place, like a speakeasy, for example, and saw there a friend with some woman other than his wife, I would not appear to know him and would try to leave without attracting his attention," said a man recently, and all the other men there understood his meaning and his honorable motive. The women did not. To them it seemed to be a confirmation of an all-male conspiracy, the existence of which they had previously suspected.

It is generally conceded that Hoover's chances for re-election have improved since his speech of acceptance. That is causing great satisfaction in those Republican neighborhoods where some enthusiastic and solitary Democrat kept his radio going all night to listen to the Democratic convention. Those irritated neighbors were so completely and permanently attached to Hoover that night that nothing which the campaign may develop will shake them.

A young robin, wounded or distressed unto death, sought out a shadowy and secluded spot in The Vagrant's yard the other day and died there while La Vagante watched, unable to render even first aid. And then, immediately after the demise, a strange thing happened. A thrush, very much alive and about his busy occasions, came hopping along that way, following the base of the fence against which the robin still leaned, and, without so much as a pause, hopped on and over the robin's body, just as though it had been a stick or a stone of the same size blocking the way. Yet no one ever saw one bird so treat another in real life. Would that thrush have been equally nonchalant a few minutes earlier, before life was extinct? If not, how did it know that those feathers were no longer the abode of a robin?

Narberth Theatre Notes

Concluding its week of revivals of popular-request pictures, the Narberth Theatre presents John Gilbert in "The Big Parade" this Friday, and Wheeler and Woolsey in "The Cuckoos" on Saturday.

On Labor Day and Tuesday there will be a Charlie Chase comedy; also "The Blonde Captive," authentic tale of a wild hunt, with Lowell Thomas talking all through it.

Next Wednesday and Thursday, Richard Dix and Gwili Andre, exotic Norse beauty, give a topnotch performance in a graphic picturization of war-torn Manchuria.

Egyptian—This Friday and Saturday, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Love Is a Racket." Monday and Tuesday, Warren Williams and Bette Davis in "The Dark Horse." Wednesday and Thursday, Greta Garbo in "As You Desire Me."

The Literary Inquest

Conducted by Richard Powell

We are rushing this review of "Nymph Errant" by James Laver (Knopf, $2.50. Pub. Sept. 1) to the presses to steal a march on all the critics who will compare it with Voltaire's "Candide." To be honest, there can be no comparison between the two as far as lasting importance is concerned. "Nymph Errant" possesses none of the political satire that has made "Candide" a classic, but both works do fling the same shrewd, witty barbs at the cult of eroticism.

In place of the man Candide we find an "impatient maiden" (to use the delicate language of motion pictures). Evangeline graduated from finishing school in Lausanne with the parting words of Miss Pratt ringing in her ears. "Life is a scientific problem... never be afraid to experiment." Evangeline follows this advice a trifle more literally than Miss Pratt intended. Instead of returning to a tea-and-scones existence in Oxford, Evangeline goes to Deauville with a theatrical producer. The same naive curiosity lures her to an artist colony in Montparnasse, a nudist camp in Germany, a baronial castle in Austria and onto the yacht of a Greek financier. She bobs up innocently just in time to be captured in the pillage of Smyrna and sold into a Turkish harem. Her year of adventuring ends with a deliciously anticlimatic return to Oxford.

James Laver's aim misses few of the much-discussed phases of modern eroticism. In more serious hands than his, "Nymph Errant" would have become either ponderous, sordid or merely dirty. That instead it is wholesomely absurd can be credited to Laver's sense of humor and masterly use of understatement, which glosses over incidents that ordinarily would make a reader gasp. The peregrinations of Evangeline are a series of jewel-like incidents, each rounded off and coupled to the next with a dexterity reminiscent of Aldous Huxley. James Laver has succeeded in crystallizing the frothing overflow of life in his book.

"Hurdy-Gurdy" by Margaret Bell Houston (Appleton, $2. Pub. August 8). Formerly it was an exclusive male prerogative to bow to the call of adventure and the unknown, while women had the duty of keeping a light burning in the window to guide the wayfarer home. Modern Miss Houston sees this tradition in reverse. Once a masculine reader controls his indignation at finding the male characters spinning webs to bind elfin women to aprons and domesticity; once a feminine reader stops sniffing that "That snip of a heroine didn't deserve him!"; they may settle down to enjoy a delightful little story that touches lightly on the chords of one's memory.

Derry Carewe, in whose nature was a trait of wanderlust inherited from her father, wanted to study painting and wanted to marry Dillard Kent. So she tried to get along without Dillard. It didn't work. What use was it, Derry asked herself, to win art prizes in New York, while home in Texas some horrid girl like Monica might be snatching Dillard? Through such experiences Derry acquires merit after the Hindu fashion. The pixie strains of the hurdy-gurdy (the symbolism is the author's, not the reviewer's) that had unsettled Derry fade away and change into the satisfactory chiming of wedding bells.

Hearsay Evidence

According to figures published July 20 by the Department of Commerce, there has been little decline in the popularity of good fiction. "Best sellers" have not been hurt by a more frugal attitude on the part of the public, but on the other hand "filler" novels have dropped off greatly. From a literary point of view, this increased discrimination by the public makes us wish for more and better depressions.

There were 4,222 new book titles published in the first six months of 1932, of which 1,022 were fiction, as compared with 1,053 issued in 1931. Retrenchment affected the fields of philosophy, religion, law, science, business, travel and biography, while education, economics and sports showed an increase.

The problem of gauging public demand for a book and disposing of the remainder has come to be the most serious one to the publishing business. Unloading of overstock through drug and chain stores at a cut-rate price has upset the market greatly. And while a popular book never sees the cut-rate shelves, the practice of selling reprint rights to the cheap dition firms within a year after the book's publication has hurt the regular market. Book publishers are studying this situation closely in an effort to achieve some uniformity regarding these practices.

"Local History" is Sixth Library Reading List

"Local History" is the sixth in the series of Reading Lists prepared by the Library for the benefit of those patrons who may desire to systematize their reading.

1. "The Making of Pennsylvania," by Sidney George Fisher. Interesting description of the ingredients, racial and religious, which first went into America's oldest melting pot; also something of Pennsylvania's border disputes and torays.

2. "Pennsylvania Place Names," by A. Howry Espenshach. Beginning with an explanation of the use of the term "Keystone", a Penn State professor discusses origin of familiar names, Indian, Biblical, classic, borrowed, invented, as well as those referring to plant life and industries.

3. "Philadelphia, the Place and the People," by Agnes Repplier. The city's history and her charm told by a loyal citizen.

4. "Desecration and Profanation of the Pennsylvania Capitol" by S. W. Pennypacker. A former governor in a letter addressed to the people of the state dated October 4, 1911, replies to the attacks on erection, construction and furnishings of the state capitol.

5. "Book of Philadelphia," by Robert Shackleton. A guide book prepared by one well versed in the art of revealing a city.

6. "Guide book of art, architecture and historical interest in Philadelphia," by A. M. Archambault. Fostered by the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. A book for the use of tourists, arranged chronologically, beginning with the counties first formed.

7. "Red Hills," by Cornelius Weygandt. Prof. Weygandt of the U. of P. a life collector of their lore, tells the story of the Pennsylvania Dutch, their picturesque customs and their pottery.

8. "Wissahickon Hills," by Prof. Weygandt. A description of night herons of that vicinity, of the ice storm of 1902, of watering troughs, of spring houses, and various incidents of the authors youth.

9. "Old Roads out of Philadelphia," by John T. Faris. To make outdoor life more fascinating to motorists by adding to it a knowledge of local history.

10. "Seeing Pennsylvania," by John T. Faris. With the same motive as above broadened to include the state.

11. "Historic Lower Merion and Blockley," by Dora Harvey Develin. An interesting collection of historical data on the eastern section of the Main Line by a resident of Bala.

12. "Pennsylvania Trees by Joseph S. Illick." A fine treatise, well illustrated, of the trees of Pennsylvania, by a U. of P. professor.

13. "Quaint corners in Philadelphia," edited by John Wanamaker. Illustrated by local artists including Joseph Pennell.

14. "Travels in Philadelphia," by Christopher Morley. Interesting essays on local subjects—City Hall Square, the Paoli local, Leary's Book store, etc.

15. "The Old Main Line," by J. W. Townsend. Personal reminiscences of the 60's and 70's.

16. "Byways and Boulevards in and about Historic Philadelphia," by Brandt and Gummere. Published during the Sesqui-centennial to show visitors how to reach and enjoy every nook in the city.

17. "Independence Square Neighborhood," by Carroll Frey. Historical notes on Independence Square, Washington Square and near-by districts.

singing double, which admitted Friel and Sirch to the scoring headquarters. Lyons was mighty shaky then, but bore down and retired the side.

Credit for defensive gems goes to Barney Slaughter and Reverend Jack Hart. In the first Gordon slammed a liner which Byron snared in the proverbial shoe-string style, while Hart contributed a nifty catch of Howdy Powell's fly in the fifth, taking it one-handed.

Harry Francis scintillated with the lumber for the homesters, banging away for five hits, one of which was a double, and Gilfillan played second fiddle with three. MacGregor's two safeties were a double and home run, the latter coming in the final Narberth chance when the outcome proved it was needed very badly indeed.

Kreuz had a brace of singles for the losers and McGee's one hit was the Ruthian wallop mentioned earlier. The box score:

Is the rain eclipsed?

Last July we had eight inches of rain.

Just now we are only one-half inch above normal. On April 16 we had an excess of four inches. Somewhere between we have lost three and one-half inches of rain. On August 29th last summer we had an excess of four inches.

Late September brings the fall flower shows. Which means that we will have to play the hose heavily 'tween now and then. Dahlias can stand lots of water when they are in bud. And we want good spikes of "glads" and fine big zinnias. Liquid manure makes an ideal fertilizer to finish off the flowers—and the before and after watering helps a lot.

That very desirable combination planting of delphiniums and madonna lilies may be considered at this time. Lily specialists warn us that lilies are likely to rot in the ground if drainage conditions are not perfect and advise treating the bulbs with Semesan, or any good fungicide, by way of helping to prevent decay. Lily bulbs, or any bulbs, rotting in the soil will raise havoc with delphiniums or any other plant that is at all subject to fungous diseases. Manure of any kind that has not been completely broken down to clean humus is bad for lilies or delphiniums. It is quite likely that the failure of delphiniums may be attributed to lilies, tulips or other bulbs rotting in the ground and creating a fungous condition which affects the delphiniums directly. Sand under lilies helps drainage considerably, but the entire bed should be well drained. Madonna lilies are among the few that do not object to limestone soil so that they thrive in that well-drained, lime bed that suits the delphiniums. "Delphs" are fussy things and rather prefer a bed to themselves with only annuals to shade the soil.

Beds of bulbs and annuals make a good planting. Beds of perennials and bulbs do not combine so well—the bulbs are in our way when we want to divide or transplant perennials and the perennials are in our way when we want to plant or divide bulbs. The English herbaceous border is an herbaceous border—truly, not a mixture of herbaceous perennials, hardy bulbs, annuals, tender bulbs and "stick-it-in-that-blank-space" material.

Suggestions for tulip selections, reasonably priced. Darwins—Bleu Aimable, Clara Butt, Flamingo, La Fiancée, La Tulipe Noire, Ronald Gunn and Zwanzburg. In cottage type—Ellen Willmott, Moonlight, Mrs. Moon, Rosabella, The Fawn and Walter T. Ware. For breeders—Apricot, Bronze Queen, Dom Pedro, Golden Bronze, Lois XIV, Marie Louise and Velvet King. For a real showy breeder get Lucifer. And note carefully the height, relative flowering time and shape of the blooms when planning to combine tulips in a bed or border.

Frogs still here, also some tadpoles—imported from Rosemont.

Blue lobelia and jewel weed along the streams and golden rod in the fields. Why does golden rod suggest the autumn? Let us hope that frost is a long way off—we should have at least two more months to enjoy the flowers. And then the brilliant fall foliage—and the fruits on trees and shrubs—and the birds to stop and feast on their way south—and many to stay with us if we will give them water and food. The trees are always with us in spring, summer, autumn and winter—always interesting, always growing, starting the buds for next season before they shed the leaves of this one. Trees in winter seem to be a promise of the spring to come. Evergreen trees seem to be less sociable, monotonously beautiful, always the same, a little larger each year, green in winter—cheerful—yes. But the oaks, beeches, gums and dogwoods are just as pretty to us in winter as in spring or fall, the bare branches are holding promises of the season to come.

Meet at Mrs. LaFore's

The Penn Valley Garden Club held a meeting Tuesday at the home of the president, Mrs. John A. LaFore, of Penn Valley Farms. Following the meeting the members were entertained at a luncheon and swimming party by Mrs. LaFore.

Miss Marion Selee, who is a member of the Chautauqua Opera Company, is spending ten days with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Keenan, of Avon road.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Palmer and their daughter, Miss Hazel Palmer, of Merion avenue, returned to their home last Friday from a two weeks' trip to Montreal and Quebec and a cruise on the St. Lawrence and Saguenay Rivers.

Mrs. M. M. Livingston, of Chystrut avenue, and her daughter, Miss Margaret Livingston, spent last week in Berlin, Md., where they were the guests of Mrs. B. F. Saffie, formerly of Narberth.

Mrs. Gulda Moore, of Germantown, formerly of Narberth, is in the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, recovering from a serious operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Wheeler, of Anthwyn road, and their daughters, Miss Kathleen and Miss Martha, left on Wednesday for their new home in Lansing, Mich.

On Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Walton M. Wentz, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nold and Mr. and Mrs. Ben McSevney entertained at a progressive dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Sleath and daughter, of Haverford avenue, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bawden and daughter, of Wynnewood road and Woodside avenue, at their cottage in Ocean City over the week-end.

Mrs. Sarah Burgess and her daughter, Miss Kathryn Burgess, of Hampden avenue, will spend the week-end and Labor Day in Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Burnside, of 124 Merion avenue, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son on Tuesday, August 30.

All Amateurs May Compete in Ardmore Club's Flower Show

Amateur gardeners from all the communities on the Main Line will have the opportunity to display their choicest blooms at the Ninth Annual Fall Flower Show, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Ardmore, and which will be held at the club house on Ardmore avenue on Friday, September 16, from two until nine o'clock. There will be 78 classes for gladioli, dahlias, roses and garden flowers. Prizes will be given for artistic arrangement, miniature pictures of flower arrangement, miniature arrangement, doll's luncheon table, occasional tables, anniversary tables, a class for men consisting of vegetables raised by themselves, and a children's class.

The Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd Cup will be offered in competition for the greatest number of points in dahlias, and the Horticultural Society of Pennsylvania will give the sweepstake award for the person winning the highest number of points. The exhibit is free to the residents of the various communities.

The judges of the Flower Show are: J. Liddon Pennock, of Villanova; Robert J. Edgar, of Narberth; Mrs. Harry C. Tily, 2d, Cynwyd; Mrs. Thomas Lewis, of Paoli; Mrs. Edward C. Jacoby, of Radnor; Miss Isabella Walker, Miss Helen W. Birkinbine, of Cynwyd; Mrs. Benjamin Bullock, of Ardmore, and Mrs. H. J. Baldwin, of Norristown. Mrs. Cecil H. Vaughan is the chairman of the committee.

Puppet Show Properties on Display at Library

The stage and properties used at the very delightful Puppet Show on the Community Playground last Thursday, are being exhibited at the Library this week.

The performance was given under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Misen, one of the playground supervisors, as a project in dramatic art as well as in craftsmanship.

Those who had the privilege of viewing the performance can testify to the success of the dramatic features and they and all others will enjoy a closer inspection of the fine workmanship displayed in the creation of the puppets and the furniture employed in the story of Goldilocks and the Three Bears.

Goldilocks herself is a beautiful creation and is a center of attraction at the Library. The work is well worth viewing and will be on display for the rest of the week.

August Was Warmest Month Since February

Net Excess of 40 Degrees Surpasses Last Year's Figure; Totality Far Greater

AUG. WARMEST MONTH

A net excess temperature of 40 degrees was recorded during August, bringing the total for the year to 308 degrees, compared to a total excess of 201 degrees at the same time last year. In August, 1931, a net excess of 19 degrees was recorded.

August recorded the third largest net excess of 1932, ranking behind January and February. Its record was greatly helped during the closing days by a torrid wave which achieved record-smashing proportions on the last day of the month, the thermometer in this area reaching a high of 92.

For the most part, however, the month was near normal, its nights being remarkable for their chill. Only the intensity of the last few days' heat served to advance the excess temperature to the 40-degree mark.

Despite heavy storms Saturday night and Wednesday, the heat continued with unabated force and carried over into September, which dawned clear and hot, after a night of intermittent rain.

BUSINESS BITS

Work has been completed on an enlargement and improvement of Freeman's Market, Haverford and Essex avenues. Hyman Ricklin, owner of the building and proprietor of the hardware store next door to the market, says he wanted the work done by Narberth people, and asked for bids, hoping the prices would compare favorably with those of firms in other communities. He was pleasantly surprised. "I was able to prove," he says, "that Narberth people can do work at no greater cost than outsiders."

The work, which cost approximately $900, was done by William D. and H. T. Smedley, general contractors; Carlos Mozzone, brick and stone; Harvey Cook, roofing; Walter G. Case, electrical, and Kenneth Smith, painting.

Denial was made this week by General Superintendent Milton Fritzsche of the Horn and Hardart Baking Company, that the Narberth branch would close September 1. This rumor has had wide circulation in the Borough recently. It was, however, admitted that business recently has fallen off considerably, and that closing of the Borough store is contemplated at some future date if trade does not soon show a marked increase.

Nothing seems to make such strides in this age of surprising improvements as the radio. Now it is a tiny personal set, no larger than a book that plugs in to the nearest available light socket and competes with other larger and more cumbersome sets in tone and distance. It is made for traveling... of featherweight materials well braced against vibration... with a bakelite cabinet that will not scratch. It will fit snugly into your traveling bag or in the top drawer of your desk at the office. In a college room where space is at premium, this compact little radio would be ideal. It comes in cabinets of black, walnut, mahogany and a Deluxe model in delicate pastel shades. Look for them at Electric, Inc., 15 West Lancaster avenue, Ardmore.

Merion Notes

Mrs. Robert Reinhart, of Heath road, who has been spending several days in Cape May, will return this Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Young, of Raynham road and City Line avenue, are among the recent arrivals at The Dennis in Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Rissinger, of Valley road, have sailed on the Ile de France for a visit in England and Scotland. They will return the latter part of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wells Freeman, of N. Bowman avenue, entertained informally at supper last Saturday in honor of Commander Richard Ellsworth Webb, U. S. N., and Mrs. Webb, who were their guests over the week-end. Commander and Mrs. Webb recently returned from China and are now living in New York.

American Premiere of New Play at Hedgerow Tomorrow

The 88th production of the Hedgerow Theatre in Rose Valley is an American premiere of a play which a few years ago was one of the brilliant successes of the German theatre,—Carl Sternheim's "A Place in the World," translated by Barrett Clark and Winifred Katzin. This satirical comedy will be performed for the first time in this country tomorrow night, and will be repeated on Monday and Tuesday. In the cast are Ferd Nofer, Carl Reukauff, Harry Sheppard, Hancy Castle, Miriam Phillips, and Mabel Sheppard.

"The Heavenly Express," by Albert Bein, a romantic story of railroad men and hoboes, is scheduled for next Wednesday night. Bella Spewack's "Spring Song," a powerful and appealing picture of New York's East Side, is to be given on Thursday night. Two English comedies will be presented on the week-end nights,—Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By" on Friday, and Shaw's "Heartbreak House" on Saturday.

During the next two months two new plays will be prepared for early production,—a Spanish comedy by G. Martinez Sierra, and "Alison's House," Susan Glaspell's Pulitzer Prize winner.

Tonight at Hedgerow the show is Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor—Jones."

Beta Chapter Members Attend Convention at Utica

The four members of the Beta Chapter of the Phi-Delta-Sigma fraternity of Lower Merion High School returned home last Saturday morning from the four day convention held in Utica, N. Y., by the Alpha Chapter of that city.

It is the first convention of the fraternity attended by the Beta Chapter since 1928. The trip was made in charge of the president, Robert B. Reinhart, Jr., of Merion. The fraternity is a national one having chapters all over the country. The boys must have made a good showing for they brought home three out of the ten Grand Lodge offices. Reinhart, was elected Grand Corresponding Secretary; Edmund Cunningham, of Narberth, was elected Grand Sergeant-at-arms and John Lowrie, of Merion, a Trustee. The other member of the fraternity attending the convention was Ralph Smith, of Narberth.

There were twenty-four chapters represented at the convention.

Recreation Board to Provide Fence Along Haverford Ave.

At a meeting of the Narberth Recreation Board last Friday night plans were discussed for the installation of a wire fence along the newly paved portion of Haverford avenue bordering the playground.

It was decided to provide in next year's budget for the installation of a fence similar to that bordering the baseball diamond. It will be placed far enough back from the roadway to allow for parking of automobiles at games while at the same time it will act as a safeguard for children playing on the field.

Narberth Firemen Commended

Formation of Safety Association is Begun

Support of All Main Line Organizations Requested This Week

CAMPAIGN NEXT MONTH

The initial step in the formation of a permanent Main Line Safety Association was taken this week when letters were sent to all organizations of the section requesting their co-operation in the movement.

Joseph R. Murphy, Main Line manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, is temporary chairman of the committee appointed by Joseph Cairns, Jr., president of the Main Line Kiwanis Club, which originated the idea. Mr. Murphy announced yesterday that the co-operation of every group and organization from Overbrook to Malvern would be enlisted in the drive to reduce automobile accidents in the section.

Other members of the committee working with Mr. Murphy are W. Harold Riggs, of Ardmore, and Nathan P. Pechin, of Wayne.

The campaign itself will be held during the month of October, with its aim the elimination of fatalities, injuries and damage to property due to automobile accidents.

It is expected that a general meeting will be held later this month to outline the plans of the campaign to representatives of all Main Line organizations participating.

In the letters mailed this week the temporary committee requests that organizations present the following resolution at their next regular meeting: "The (name of organization) has resolved to endorse the Safety movement to be sponsored by a Main Line Safety Association."

IN NEW POST

Alex Severance to be Graduate Manager at Villanova

Alex G. Severance has been appointed graduate manager of athletics at Villanova College. He is replacing Charles A. McGeehan, who resigned on account of illness, but will act as executive chairman of athletics at the college. Severance, at 25 years of age, in all probability is one of the youngest graduate athletic managers in the country.

He was graduated from Regis High School, New York City, in 1925, where he played basketball, football and baseball and was on the track and boxing teams. He entered Villanova that year, played four seasons of basketball, was also on the track and boxing teams. He held the college title in the 135-145 pound boxing classes.

He was co-captain of the basketball team in his senior year. He was assistant to Mr. McGeehan during his four years in college, and publicity director from 1929 to 1932. He was valedictorian of his class. His home is in New York City.

Infantile Paralysis—Symptoms and Precautions to be Observed

back of the neck. He is likely to be constipated, but may have diarrhea. More significant are a sore, stiff neck and spine and pains in the back, arms and legs. Many of these symptoms are not unlike those in the common upsets to which children are subject, but the most serious sign is the stiffness of the spine and neck, the child being unable to bend them forward.

"Sometimes these early symptoms may be very mild and yet within from twenty-four to seventy-two hours the child may be unable to move an arm or a leg. Again he may be unmistakably sick with the first stages of this disease, but develop little or no paralysis. Sometimes a child may have so mild a case that the attack is scarcely noticed, and yet he may spread the contagion to other children. Even a doctor who is a nerve or child specialist often has to perform a slight operation (known as lumbar puncture) to be sure that his diagnosis is correct.

Why It Is Important to Call the Doctor Early

"If your child has fever, vomiting and marked restlessness, put him to bed and promptly call your family doctor. Even though your doctor is one of the best, he may wish to have the advice of a specialist to supplement his own judgment. The child may not have infantile paralysis, but if he has, prompt action on your part may spare him months and even years of helplessness. The doctor may be able to prevent the crippling after-effects, which are the worst features of this disease, if he is called in before the arms or legs begin to be weak and paralyzed. He will also give advice about the position of the patient and how to care for and move him, which may have much to do with the prevention of deformity or crippling. It is very important to get a doctor's advice at the earliest possible moment.

"A serum is now available in certain communities, made from the blood of healthy individuals who have had this disease and have entirely recovered. This 'convalescent serum' is believed by some who have used it to prevent paralysis and death in a considerable percentage of cases, but it is given, it must be administered before the paralysis sets in, to do any good. Not all patients should be given the serum. The doctor or the specialist can tell whether or not your child should have it. His advice at the outset may save much suffering later.

Care of the Paralyzed Child

"If your child has had infantile paralysis and is paralyzed, follow your doctor's instructions as to how to strengthen the weakened muscles and nerves. Proper care and treatment usually bring about improvements during the first year and prevent permanent deformity. This may require prolonged rest in bed and possibly irksome treatment. But do not get discouraged. While guaranteed or advertised 'cures' are usually unreliable, yet often much can be done under the advice of an experienced physician to bring back health, usefulness and happiness.

How Infantile Paralysis Is Thought to Be Spread and What Should Be Done to Protect Others

"There is much about infantile paralysis that is not yet understood, but it is believed to be spread directly and indirectly from one person to another, much as other contagious diseases of childhood are spread. It is thought that one may even carry the infection without showing symptoms of the disease; in fact, 'healthy' carriers may be more numerous and active in spreading the disease than active cases. In a very few outbreaks, contaminated milk seems to have spread the infection.

"When a child has infantile paralysis, he should be put to bed, away from other members of the family, the doctor called, the case reported to the Department of Health, and measures taken to protect others, as directed by the doctor or the health officer.

"If Infantile Paralysis Is Near
"If there is an epidemic of infantile paralysis or of other contagious diseases in your community, it is a good rule to keep your child out of crowds. Avoid the movies, theatres, parties, dances, picnics and crowded boats and trains until the epidemic is over. Health authorities usually agree that children are safer from the disease when kept in school than when taken from school and allowed to play in the streets or elsewhere, though even schools sometimes are closed for short periods to try to stop the disease from spreading. Keep your child away from homes where there is sickness. If you have a yard, let your child play in it. The roofs of apartment houses, when properly protected against accidents, often are fine playgrounds.

"The general rules of health are always important. Parents should see to it that children wash their hands before eating, that they do not use public towels or common drinking cups, that they cover nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing, and that they keep fingers out of nose and mouth and put nothing in the mouth which has been soiled in the slightest degree by others. A child should never be kissed on the mouth. He should have good simple food, at home or at the school cafeteria, and plenty of water to drink. He should go to bed early, and have regular bowel movements.

"It is desirable to keep the house as clean as possible. Use plenty of soap and water, fight flies, mice, rats and other vermin, and remember that fresh air and sunlight are destroyers of germs.

"The use of pasteurized milk is especially important, because of the possibility that raw milk may carry the germs of infantile paralysis, as it sometimes does the germs of other epidemic diseases."

Jimmy Dykes Speaker Before Rotary Club

Simmons. The former was described as the hardest hitter of them all, Babe Ruth not excepted. Simmons, who has been accused of slumping, is hitting better than .300, Dykes said, and has brought in a staggering number of runs. Despite this record, the players have dubbed him "Alfonso," which, when translated, means ex-king.

McNair was described as the outstanding shortstop in the American League, and a probable cornerstone for future campaigns. Many amusing anecdotes of the adventures of a professional ball player were quoted.

drop of 120 feet and another 40 feet. This method, he explained, saves much time and energy.

The first camp established by the expedition was on the slope of Mt. Russell, but snow storms prevented them from making an ascent.

Following the successful ascent of Mt. Oublette, the camp was moved to the base of another peak, but after five days of snow and rain they were forced to give up hopes of making other ascents and started homewards.

Dr. Strumia took several reels of motion pictures during the expedition which vividly depict the dangers as well as the thrills of the ascents.

'em up with a prayer and hoped for the best. His curve was absent also (if he has one), but for some mysterious reason the much-talked-of heavy hitters on the Narberth side couldn't hit him effectively until late in the battle.

Narberth's defeat at the hands of the Wayne Hawks is something to be ashamed of, for the reason that rank errors ruined Howard Graham's chance of pitching his way to a win.

Only two hits in five innings could the invaders get off Howie and both figured in the alien scoring. In the third inning Listy Winfree socked a single and scored after three successive errors were charged to the Davismen. Then, in the next canto, Seth Brown poked a one-bagger and scored with the aid of another miscue at the hot corner.

Harry Francis starred at bat for Narberth with a double and single.

Winfree thrilled the crowd by completing a great catch of Walt MacGregor's short fly in the third.

Score by innings:
Narberth 0 0 0 0 2 x—2
Wayne Hawks 0 0 1 1 0—2
Narberth 1 0 0 0 0—1

SALES CONVENTION

Representatives of Keystone Automobile Club in Session

County field representatives of the Keystone Automobile Club participated in a sales convention held at the Brinton Lake Club, Concordville, Delaware County, last week. Reports from all parts of the territory, served by the Keystone Automobile Club indicated an upward swing in business conditions, and the representatives were greatly enthused by the prospect of early return to normal conditions.

The meeting took the form of a political convention, with "presidential" candidates chosen by the Progressive and Liberal parties. The entire sales force will wage a strenuous campaign, with memberships counting as votes. The campaign will end the same day as the national election in November.

County representatives who participated in the convention included: Joseph R. Murphy, Manager of the Ardmore Office; F. J. Harrity, Ardmore; M. Goodritz, Bryn Mawr; and James J. Foley, Wayne.

Night Schools Urged for Lower Merion

Viewed as Educational Offset to Economic Conditions by Welfare Workers

STATE AID AVAILABLE

Establishment of evening high and elementary schools in Lower Merion Township is being urged by civic groups and welfare workers as an educational offset to economic conditions.

Courses offered would be open to adults as well as children of school age.

Indications that enrollment in Lower Merion Senior High School might exceed the capacity of the school also added impetus to the movement. Many high school students who were graduated last year, it was learned this week, contemplate returning for post-graduate courses owing to their inability to secure employment. Rather than limit the enrollment, especially during a time of economic distress, school officials are discussing the possibility of organizing evening courses.

It is understood that State aid is available for such schools when they are established in accordance with certain requirements of the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction. Further, the State law provides that whenever 20 or more residents of a school district make written application for instruction in English and citizenship for immigrants and native illiterates, in any course of study taught in the day elementary or secondary schools, or for instruction in citizenship for adults, such classes shall be organized and maintained by the Board of School Directors of the school district.

All such public schools classes maintained in addition to the regular day school program are classified as "extension schools and classes," which are by law an integral part of the State program of free public instruction and therefore include the provision of free texts, regular certification of teachers, conformance to the minimum salary schedule and other provisions.

WILL OF S. T. BODINE

Financier Left Estate of "$300,000 and Upward" to 3 Children

The will of Samuel T. Bodine, late of Villanova, leaving an estate valued at "$300,000 and upward," was probated in the Register of Wills' office, Norristown, last week.

Three children are the chief beneficiaries in the estate. The will directs, however, that servants be given sums approved by the children, and creates a trust fund for a niece.

The children are Mrs. Louise H. How, wife of Dr. H. W. How; Mrs. Eleanor G. Perry, wife of William G. Perry, and William W. Bodine. The son and the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Company are named executors and trustees of the estate.

The will was executed June 8, 1932. It directs that all inheritance taxes are to be paid out of the estate so that bequests will be clear of the tax. It provides that the three children are to receive all paintings, antiques, jewelry, silver, automobile and furniture. All real estate, a large part of which was in Villanova, is to be divided equally.
